

Draft Proof Copy

The Greek Heritage Study Bible is a working draft of a fresh English translation prepared from the Greek textual heritage of the Church: the Old Testament from the Septuagint tradition and the New Testament from the Scrivener 1894 Textus Receptus.

The goal is to make a Bible that gives careful attention to the Greek Old Testament text used and quoted by the New Testament authors, so readers can hear the Scriptures in the form that shaped the apostolic witness.

This draft is a work in progress. It will contain mistakes and rough areas that can be improved. That is the purpose of this copy: to be read, marked, tested, and corrected before final publication.

Notes identify translation decisions, textual differences, divine names, proper-name meanings, and places where Greek and Hebrew traditions need explanation. Cross-references and larger study-note layers have been minimized so the focus stays on proofreading the biblical text itself.

Not final text. Prepared for proofreading and correction.
